

BRUCE SIMONS-MORTON

Bio

BRUCE SIMONS-MORTON is Chief of the Prevention Research Branch in the Division of Epidemiology, Statistics, and Prevention Research at the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, NIH, where he directs a program of research on child and adolescent health behavior that focuses on three areas: (1) preventing problem behavior; (2) preventing motor vehicle crashes among young drivers; and (3) promoting family management of childhood disease. Dr. Simons-Morton was educated at the University of California at Santa Barbara, San Diego State University, The University of Northern Colorado, and The Johns Hopkins University School of Public Health.

Previously he held academic positions at Temple University, The University of Texas Medical Branch, and the University of Texas School of Public Health. He is the author of the textbook, Introduction to Health Education and Promotion, 2nd Edition and has published over 100 journal articles and book chapters.